

Gen. Hugh A. Drum Visits 117th Infantry

General Hugh A. Drum, one of the ranking generals of the United States Army, and First Army commander, recently visited the command post of Col. R. H. Bond of the 117th Infantry during the maneuver now in progress in South Carolina. He complimented the regiment for the part it is playing in the war games. Taken at the time of this visit, the picture shows, left to right, Major General Henry D. Russell, 30th Division Commander, with hand on shoulder of Lt. Col. Hugh I. Mainord of the 117th Infantry; Major General Charles F. Thompson, commanding First Army Corps; Col. Bond; Gen. Drum; Major A. U. Taylor and Lt. Ben T. Ammons, both of the 117th Infantry.
