

My Maneuvers in North Carolina Bring Discomfort, Even An Occasional Death

Gray Gives Most Interesting Account Of Experiences

(Wayne W. Gray)
I've been reading much about maneuvers and I thought it was interesting to describe one on a problem in detail. I have done this several times during the last three months and I have been throughly enjoyed that privilege and am sure you will be too. I have been more than anything else we have done out here.

We really mean our church and friends and family to be in the front lines and we are looking forward with a great deal of anticipation to the first of February and the first friends and congregations to be in the front lines.

I have never felt better than I have now, in spite of the rough life and early hours. It isn't so bad after all.
F.R.—If you can take it!

BROTHER AT KENNETH

Mrs. K. K. Watson was called to Kenneth early in the week by news of the illness and death of her brother, B. M. Watson, who had been in ill health the greater part of this year and whose death occurred Tuesday morning last.

Brother Watson joined her Thursday for the funeral services that afternoon.

Mr. Watson, who was well known here, had been a traveling salesman most of his life, representing a line of men's clothing. He had been unable to work, however, since his health failed the first of the present year.

Brother Watson was a member of the Methodist church in this community. Mr. Watson is survived by his wife, three sons, Edward, Jr., of Dallas, Texas; James, of Louisville, Ky.; and Billy, of Kennett, and one daughter, Catherine, a former teacher in the Caruthersville schools who is present on Monday morning as a lieutenant in the U. S. Army, now stationed at Denver, Colo.

one could find more difficult. They certainly have not learned to think things smoothly yet. We went to bed at 2:30, and at 4:30 we were awakened for breakfast. Eggs, grubs and greens were served right at that hour, but we eat just what we want. Some of the men are being fed while others are on guard duty. The command has been given. They will soon sweep places, as it can be fed.

The mail was delivered to us by a messenger. I had a letter from Mrs. Gray, who is staying in Columbia. She included letters which she had written to me. I had a letter from Mrs. Gray, who is staying in Columbia. She included letters which she had written to me.
