Music by the 30th Division orchestra will feature Monday's regular broadcast of "Meet The Yanks" from Service Club No. 1 over Indianapolis Station WIBC.

In addition to orchestral versions of popular tunes, other acts will feature Cpl. Arvo Aho and his violin; Cpls. Bill Pore and Bud Henderson in a double-piano skit; Cpl. Kenneth Boyce, the 30th Division's "Baby Snooks," and Technician 5th Grade William Hudson, vocalist.

The audience will be guests at a dance following the broadcast.

Six dances in three days will keep Atterbury's dancing soldiers busy Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in the Service Clubs. Tuesday square dancing is on deck at Club No. 1 with Indianapolis Liberty Belles available to cut the corners with the doughboys. The regular Tuesday dance will also be held at Club No. 2 where Franklin Cadettes will be partners.

The dance scene remains at Nos. 1 and 2 Wednesday, but the affair at No. 2 will be a private party for the 301st Signal Battalion. Indianapolis girls will be guests for dancing at both Nos. 2 and 3 Thursday.

The 74th Army Ground Force Band stationed here, has been redesignated as the 196th Army Band. Directed by Technical Sgt. Antonio P. Martins, the band is composed of 29 men, who also form the roster for a 16-piece dance orchestra which plays many servicemen's dances. Technical Sgt. Joseph Murphy is director of the dance group.
